

MODERN WORK & WORKERS' VOICES

Virtual Conference

May 7 - 8, 2024 | 9 AM - 3 PM Pacific
calaborlab.ucsf.edu/2024-annual-conference

General Registration: Free Registration for CEUs: $49

In 1972, Studs Terkel published Working. The book was about good and bad jobs, written in a time when it was possible to extract meaning, economic sustenance, and even satisfaction with many, if not all jobs. Now, as current economic and political forces drive down wages and erode worker protections, we find sustenance is often impossible and meaning has been stripped from modern work.

The Third Annual Conference of the California Labor Lab focuses on the state of working today and the recovery of workers' voice. With continued low unemployment, worker expectations and an increased sense of empowerment may again produce some leverage in the labor market. Some signposts of that leverage include increases in local minimum wages, successful efforts by labor unions to increase wages and improve working conditions in previously unorganized industries, and white collar workers' resistance to demands to forgo remote work.

This conference is organized around thematic modules that explore the experience of working in the contemporary economy, with a focus on California, the nation's largest state and, if it were a nation, said to have the fifth largest economy in the world.

The California Labor Lab is a collaboration among investigators at UCSF, UC Berkeley, and the California Department of Public Health. The Lab is housed at the Philip R Lee Institute for Health Policy Studies at UCSF. Our mission is to extend the pursuit of health and safety for workers in traditional employment to those in a wide range of alternative arrangements in partnership with affected communities.

Tuesday, May 7, 2024

Introduction: Modern Work and Workers' Voices

Edward Yelin, PhD, University of California, San Francisco

Cristina Banks, PhD, University of California, San Francisco

Opening Remarks

Julie A. Su, Acting Secretary of Labor

Keynote Presentation: Supporting Gig Workers with the California Labor Federation

Lorena Gonzales Fletcher, Executive Secretary-Treasurer, California Labor Federation

Modern Work in California: Results from the California Work and Health Survey

Edward Yelin, PhD, University of California, San Francisco

Laura Trupin, MPH, University of California, San Francisco

Work and Workers in Higher Education

Alfredo Carlos, PhD, CSU Dominguez Hills

Current and Ongoing Challenges Facing the Health Workforce

Bianca Frogner, PhD, University of Washington

Panel Discussion: Working in Higher Education

Alfredo Carlos, PhD

Jim Philliou

Catherine Hutchinson, MA

Rafael Jaime

Monique Hosein, DrPH, MPH

Panel Discussion: Working in Health Care

Laura Stock, PhD

Bianca Frogner, PhD

Marnie Dobson, PhD

Jessica King, MSW, PhD, PHI

Jane Thomason, CIH

Constanza Nider

Learning Objectives:

- At the completion of this activity, the learner will be able to:
- Describe the extent to which non-standard employment arrangements, including alternative ways of hiring workers, contingent employment, and app-based work have taken hold
 - Identify issues facing workers in two important sectors of the economy: higher education and health care
 - Discuss the primary goals of workers' representatives in dealing with the growth of non-standard employment

Accreditation:

The Center for Occupational and Environmental Health designates this activity for a maximum of 5.0 Contact Hours. Participants should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation.

Provider approved by the California Board of Registered Nursing, Provider Number 12983, for 5.0 contact hours.

Wednesday, May 8, 2024

Revisiting Key Themes from Day 1

Victor Rubin, MCP, PhD, California Labor Lab

Low Pay and More: Challenges Facing Today's Low-Wage Workers

Alix Gould-Werth, PhD, United States Department of Labor

Stress at Work: How Communication Both Harms and Heals

Justin Boren, PhD, Santa Clara University

Building an Inclusive Culture of Health @ UCLA

Wendy Slusser, MD, MS, FAAP

Theodore F. Robles, PhD, UC Los Angeles

Keynote Introduction

Daniel Schneider, PhD, Harvard University

Keynote Presentation: Just Work: Choices and Options at this Critical Moment

David Weil, MPP, PhD, Brandeis University

Panel Discussion: Working in Low Wage Sectors

Alix Gould-Werth, PhD

Nicole Moore

Nancy Zuniga, MPH

Deysi Gomez

Suzanne Teran

Policy Panel Discussion

Liz Ortega

Elmer Lizardi

Robert Harrison, MD, MPH

Laura Stock, MPH

Victor Rubin, MCP, PhD

Learning Objectives:

At the completion of this activity, the learner will be able to:

- Explain how low wage labor affects worker well-being and how it is experienced on a daily basis on the job and beyond
- Examine how contemporary work generates stress and results in mental health problems, and describe efforts to minimize the stresses associated with employment
- Describe how working conditions are the consequence of a set of strategies to diffuse responsibility for the welfare of workers and what public policy is focusing on to reduce adverse effects of trends in the labor market

Accreditation:

The Center for Occupational and Environmental Health designates this activity for a maximum of 5.0 Contact Hours. Participants should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation.

Provider approved by the California Board of Registered Nursing, Provider Number 12983, for 5.0 contact hours.